

Shoes for show

To those for whom shoes are just an intermediary between your foot and the ground, this free exhibition will offer little in the way of cultural insight. But for anyone with even a glancing interest in pedal matters, 'Javari Presents: The Sculptural Art of High Heels' is well worth dipping a toe into. Curated by Shonagh Marshall, who has archived the collections of Christian Louboutin (left) and Isabella Blow, it features stunning photography and many iconic shoes, including the Vivienne Westwood numbers that famously floored Naomi in 1993. Friday November 4-Tuesday November 8 at the Old Truman Brewery on Brick Lane. www.javari.co.uk

FASHION

He who dares, twins

The twinset, the sartorial pairing of cardigan with matching lightweight jumper, is a classic styling move for women. But men? An entirely different matter. New London brand Being Equal, designed by brother-and-brother team Josh and Rory Kilbride, makes it look easy. We're calling it the 'himset'; part of a range of reasonably priced, beautifully made menswear. Sweater £55, cardigan £69. www.being-equal.com

The style agenda

FASHION Big softies

Toft makes home-knitted accessories from super-soft British alpaca wool (if you don't know what these glorious animals look like, Google them). As well as ready-made snoods, gloves and alpaca bears, the Toft website sells wool and knitting kits, and generously gives away patterns for free. Knitwear from £24. ### ACCESSORIES Sibling revelry

Our favourite naughty knitwear label teams up with Fashionary this month – a new stationary brand specialising in beautiful sketchbooks for fashion designers. For £72, you get an iPad pouch, an instructive knitwear book and a special edition Sibling Fashionary sketchbook, all in full leopard-print regalia. www.3939shop.com
